

MANZANITA VILLAGE PRESENTS:

GAIA'S HIGH DESERT GARDEN

PRESCOTT'S DECOMPOSED ROCK SOIL, HILLY TERRAIN AND LIMITED RAINFALL MAKE UTILIZATION OF PERMACULTURE PRINCIPLES DESIGNED FOR MORE BENIGN CLIMATES DIFFICULT BUT...

Manzanita Village presents a new permaculture workshop so you can:

- learn how to transform your conventional garden or orchard into a food forest of fruit trees, food-bearing bushes and annual vegetable plantings
- move from environmental theory to best practices with hands-on, real-life experiences on a typical Prescott hillside
- learn how to use native soils and terrains in your permaculture landscape

You will leave with a realistic sense of the permaculture theory from presentation by Toby Hemenway and Barbanas Kane. You will help create a food forest in a typical landscape. And you will have a chance to apply permaculture theory on an actual Prescott high dessert site.

Continental breakfast and full lunch will be provided both days.

Participants will have an opportunity to purchase a signed copy of Toby Hemenway's Gaia's Garden: A Guide to Home-Scale Permaculture at $10 off the suggested retail price.

This is a hands-on workshop, which will involve digging, lifting and bending. Participants are encouraged to wear closed-toes shoes, hats and sunscreen.
